Changes to our design

On the main window screen we have added the current location to the top bar. This allows the user to more quickly know where they are looking at.

We have removed extra black border lines to have a more fluid layout which is still clearly separated.

For the week view we have adapted the temperature display for days other than the current day to show the min and max temps.

We have also added a night time background which changes when viewed at night time. This also changes the colour of the text to ensure it is still visible.

The cycling coefficient now displays a short description of its meaning when the user hovers over it, to remove any ambiguity regarding the different icons.

The swiping motion was replaced by different controls found easier to implement.
